Profile of the "Lone Wolf" in America and Elsewhere

Evaristus Obinyan (ASU), Charles Ochie (ASU), Charles Ubah (GC&SU), Patrick Ibe (ASU), Jovita Esechie, (TSU), John Penny (SUNO)

This paper will examine and discuss the profile of the America "Lone Wolf" and the characteristics of the lone wolf globally. Though there is no universally acceptable or agreed upon in academia of the definition of "lone wolf", but the United States law enforcement agencies and other sources refer to this phenomenon as "individuals undertaking violent acts of terrorism outside a command structure". This indicate a lack of professional consensus regarding the definition of "lone wolf terrorist". This void in research will be one of the main focus of this discussion. The panel members will present datelines and calendar of lone wolf events, incidents and activities in the USA. The focus is to expose and encourage research into this untamed academic terrain and develop solid profile that can assist and provide law enforcement community the tools they need to be able to identify lone wolf radicalization, aid investigation and tracking of terrorist cells. We will analyze the limited past and current studies regarding lone wolf terrorism to better illuminate and understand motivations of these "fanatics, extremists and terrorists".

Roundtable: African Criminology and Justice Association Security Summit on Africa: Issues, Problems, Challenges, and Solutions Invigorated for the Conference (No. 1)

Wed, Nov 18, 2:00 to 3:20pm, Hilton, International Terrace East #5, Terrace Level

Session Submission Type: Roundtable Session

Abstract

This roundtable serves as a preamble to the forthcoming African Criminology and Justice Association Security Summit to be held in Nigeria. It examines the issues, problems, challenges and solutions of the security situations in Africa in general and Nigeria in particular. It raises serious issues and makes adequate efforts to address them and valuable insights and lessons gleaned in the process. These are insights and lessons that may be too important and too costly to ignore in 21st century globalized security challenging situations. At the end, the session provokes the need for more collaborative attention and vigorous scholarship on the security challenges in Africa in particular and the globe as a whole.

Roundtable: Boko Haram Impact on Youth Behavioral Choices and Poverty in Northern Nigeria

Thu, Nov 19, 11:00am to 12:20pm, Hilton, International Terrace East #3, Terrace Level

Session Submission Type: Roundtable Session

Abstract

The atrocities and terrorist activities by Boko Haram in Northern Nigeria cannot be measured in pictorials and their impact and influence on youth behavioral choices also cannot be computed by any statistical technique effectively. Boko Haram contribution and exacerbation of Northern Nigeria poverty rates and youths behavioral choices are issues of importance in the country’s academic debate. This panel in the round table will present current approaches and theories to discuss the issues presented by this group's aggression and continuing and fearless domination of Northern Nigeria with terrorism and their impact on poverty and youth behavioral choices.

Roundtable: Police Officers Who Will "Pull" the Trigger

Fri, Nov 20, 8:00 to 9:20am, Hilton, Room A, 2nd Floor

Session Submission Type: Roundtable Session

Abstract

Police shootings in the United States has dominated the news recently may be as a result of the recent deadly encounters between police and African American males. This panel will utilize meta-analysis strategy and current theoretical approaches to discuss the phenomena and provide official and unofficial data to determine if African Americans are overrepresented among those who are shot and killed by police officers, examine law enforcement reporting of police involved shootings and killings, and whether police shootings and killings are becoming more frequent. The comprehensive review of literature will assist us to establish a profile of police who will pull the trigger.
