Course (Catalog) Description: A study of the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, and Fourteenth Amendment rights and the theories behind those rights, as they relate to convicted prisoners and pretrial detainee. The impact of court decisions on prisons and jails. Liability and immunity of correctional personnel.

Program Learning Outcomes

1. Demonstrate proficiency in the application of legal concepts, theoretical applications, scientific principles, and historical trends in the criminal justice arena.
2. Demonstrate competency in the application of basic research methods, to include: research design, statistical analysis, and uses of empirical findings and interpretations.
3. Demonstrate the application of organizational principles, cultural, social and behavioral knowledge, critical thinking skills and cognitive thought processes within the criminal justice arena.

Objective: Constitutional Rights of Prisoners & Detainees will offer a sound and holistic analysis of various statutory and constitutional rights of prisoners and detainees in the US, combined with a legal, historical, sociological, and criminological examination of American jurisprudence, to include law, order, and justice. While the focus will be primarily, but not exclusively, on the functions and dynamics of statutory and constitutional rights of inmates, particular attention will be given to what I call a symbiotic triangle—law, society, and in/justice—giving us insight into the nature of law, legal systems, and legal institutions. For instance, some legal scholars approach the legal system from an outside rather an inside perspective, which focus on legal rules and procedures as seen from inside the legal system, often in an idealized form. Specifically, the intent of this course is to provide the student with a detailed understanding of 10 main topics, which are best expressed in the following questions:

1. What is law, and, by extension, order and justice?
2. Pragmatically, philosophically, politically, economically, culturally, and socially, what do we mean by constitutional rights of prisoners and detainees?
3. What are the primary objectives of statutory and constitutional rights for inmates?
4. What are the most influential theoretical and philosophical ideologies behind modern constitutional and statutory rights of inmates and detainees? How has the judicial system, in the context of legal rights, evolved in the US? What are the links between time and space?
5. What FORCES have driven and/or continue to drive legal reform as it pertains to inmates? What role do politics, the media, symbolism, power, social norms, and society play in the making and implementation of constitutional rights for prisoners? Likewise, what role have historical EVENTS played in shaping and re-shaping constitutional rights for inmates?
6. WHO has played the most significant role in “shaping and reshaping” judicial reform as it pertains to prisoners and detainees? What are the reasons of amending existing laws?
7. What is the scope and nature of current “critical” issues in jurisprudence? For instance, should undocumented people (“illegal immigrants”) be granted the same constitutional rights as their counterparts; that is, US citizens and legal residents?
8. What is the significance, implications, and ramifications of “globalized legislation and sanctions,” and, by extension, constitutional rights for prisoners and detainees in the US and abroad?
9. What are the avenues for the establishment of a rational, effective, and just legal system?
10. What is the future jurisprudence, in the context of constitutional and statutory rights for prisoners and detainees?

The next set of questions is essentially definitional in nature. It is essential that we share the same definitions of an issues, event, situation, or problem if we are to come to a common understanding of both the problem and any possible solutions/remedies. Consequently, the class’s first segment deals with defining “Law,” as it pertains to prisoners and detainees and placing it in a global context.

The last set of questions is more analytical. A particular truism about jurisprudence, criminological, sociological, and theoretical aspects of the nature of society is as follows: There are many typologies of criminological, sociological, and legal theories as there are authors writing textbooks about the subject. The five-fold approach we will take is an amalgam of several such typologies:

History—When deemed appropriate, we will make use of historical events, situations, and circumstances to better understand the subject matter by its totality. It is essential that we obtain an understanding and appreciation for historical ruptures and discontinuities as we try to bridge existing gaps. According to an African proverb, “Until lions have their own historians, histories of the hunt will glorify the hunter.”

Theory—Theoretically, we must investigate which theories provide the best guidance in our search for “truth and reality.”

Law and Society—In a society where most behavior is governed by some type of law, it is vital that we explore the relationship between law and society. To some scholars, laws are a measure of culture; crime, another element of all known cultures, is the violation of those laws. In essence, why do we have laws? Do we need laws? Does law make a difference?

Philosophy—While sociological and criminological theories might serve as “road maps” to everyday life, philosophy gives “meaning” to human existence. It enables us to better appreciate what matters most at the END of the day.

Poetry—Even though poetry is one of the oldest forms of dialogue, it is seldom mentioned in academic discussions. Yet, poetry allows us to transcend the unknown ... it allows us to dream the impossible ... to dream the impossible dream. “Invent the age, invent the metaphor. Without a credible structure of law a society is inconceivable. Without a workable poetry no society can conceive a [person].” --Archibald MacLeish, Apologia, 1972.

The final question has policy overtones. First, we must briefly look at the nature and process of human behavior, in the context of the US judicial system, with a focus on legal rights. Next, we turn to the more difficult task of linking jurisprudence, sociological, and criminological theory, particularly those we will review, to behavior, legal rights, research, and practices.

Overall, this course is designed to introduce you to the nature and dynamics of statutory and constitutional rights of inmates within the context of the legal system and, by extension, social interactions and, ultimately, human behavior in the world. By introducing you to influential issues that provide the frameworks to studying a wide variety of phenomena, I intend this course to be a basis for further, more in-depth study in the areas that interest you.

Course Context: As an upper-level course, this class may include controversial, sensitive, and/or adult material. For instance, what should “we” do with foreign nationals who are currently detained in immigration facilities for no crime other than entering the country without documentation? Yet, they are not being released or deported because their country of origin will not take them back. Thus, students are expected to have the mentality and readiness for upper-level content and rigor.

Attendance/Class Participation: Please complete the reading assignments before coming to class because there will be in-class group discussion on the assigned material. Each student will also be assigned readings and asked to discuss them in class. Note: The 100 participation points are NOT based solely on attendance. Along, with "regular" attendance, I equate all aspects of diction to determine the participation grade. Overall, I consider whether the content of the participation is thoughtful, creative, original, and mature.

Weekly Assignments: There will be ten (10) Weekly Assignments, each worth 10 points for a total of 100 points. The Weekly Assignments will be discussed further the first week of class.

Book/Article Reviews: For your Book/Article Reviews you are asked to read and make critical judgments about three (3) books/articles (20 points each). In particular, select your readings (1 book and 2 articles OR 2 books and 1 article) from the followings lists (see above): "Optional Readings" and "Recommended Readings." Note: Some exceptions will be noted in class!

As you will see, the books vary in length. Hence, be prudent about the size of the books vis-a-vis your class load. In the Book/Article Reviews for this course, keep in mind that you are limited to 3 typed pages. The logistics of the Book/Article Reviews will be discussed in class and handouts will be provided to assist you with the writing assignments.

Exams: There will be two (2) essay exams (midterm and final), each worth 100 points. Please arrange for make-up examinations prior to the date of the exam. The examinations will cover lecture materials, films, and reading assignments. Exams will contain open-ended questions (and a series of secondary questions), so please bring a blue book and a pencil/pen to each exam.

Required Project: The logistics of the project, which will be submitted as a formal paper, will be discussed in detailed in class. Illustration: many agencies allow citizens to go in and observe. Some law enforcement agencies, for instance, allow "ride alongs." Hence, you could arrange to participate in a series of activities. At the end of the shift/session, write down what you observed. Describe how it compares with what you have learned in class (e.g., statutory and constitutional rights, order, justice, etc.). For instance, based on your observations, what are the links between jurisdiction, legal rights, and justice?

Your project, which is required (100 points), will be presented at the end of the semester, if time allows. Papers (approximately 8 to 12 pages in length) must be typed. Late papers will not be accepted. Do not turn in your only copy of any paper in case assignments are lost or destroyed.

Mini-project:

This should be a fun exercise that allows you to explore (critically) some aspect of legal rights as they pertain to inmates in greater depth with less evaluation anxiety than you would have in a full-length paper assignment. I would like you to try to and choose a project that you will enjoy, and that will stimulate your thinking about the concepts covered in this course.

Mini-projects are optional. You will receive “extra credit” points for completing mini-projects. If your mini-project is adequate, you will receive one point. This point(s) will be added on to your final grade at the end of the semester.

You may turn in your mini-projects any time during the semester. The projects will be of greater value if they are done thoughtfully. Thus, you may not submit more than three (3) mini-projects.

There is no minimum or maximum length requirement. Typically you will hand in a three to five page typed paper as the final product of each mini-project. Some projects, however, may require longer (or shorter) write-ups. Your analysis should illustrate or explore some phenomenon relevant to the course, while knowledgeably using concepts, principles, and language in the context of legal rights for prisoners and detainees.

Attached to the end of the syllabus are descriptions of some mini-project options. Some of them will make more sense to you as we progress through the course. If you think of an alternative you would like to do as a mini-project, please feel free to ask me about it. Again, I am looking for you to implement class material—especially critical issues/perspectives—when describing the phenomena you choose to explore.

Grades:

There are a total of 560 points available in this course. Grades will be based on the total points for the semester. Specifically, grades will be assigned by comparing your performance to the best possible score (560) as follows:

Exams:	200 points
Weekly Assignments:	100 points*
Book/Article Reviews:	60 points
Project:	100 points
Attendance/Participation:	100 points

Total.....	560 points

*Tentatively, weekly assignments will count for 100 points. However, it is possible that the total possible points (i.e., 100) will be increased, or reduced. If increased, the TOTAL POSSIBLE points discussed herein (i.e., 560) will add to more than 560 points. If reduced, the TOTAL POSSIBLE points discussed herein (i.e., 560) will add to less than 560 points.

Similarly, if the 100 participation points are either increased or reduced, only the total possible points for participation that are utilized will be equated in the final grade distribution. In such case, the TOTAL POSSIBLE points discussed herein (i.e., 560) will add to less (or more) than 560 points.

Grade Distribution:

90-100%	= A (Excellent)
80-89%	= B (Better than Average)
70-79%	= C (Average)
Below 60%	= Failing

Please be aware of class expectations, rules, and University/College Policies, which follow:

Attendance Policy:

This course is designed to be both lecture and discussion. Thus, it is to your advantage to attend class regularly. For instance, if you do not attend class, you cannot learn the discussed material. Additionally, you will not be able to discuss the assigned readings. Much of the learning in class is through interaction—especially in small group discussions. In the process, you will be given the opportunity to express your views and ask questions that might enhance our understanding of inmates’ legal rights. Also, do not hesitate to share experiences that may help to enhance our understanding of the nature and significance of statutory and constitutional rights of prisoners and detainees and the criminal justice system as a whole. (Please reference Sul Ross State University—Rio Grande College Catalog for additional information.)

Punctuality is also of extreme importance. “Tardiness” is extremely disruptive to students and myself. Thus, try to be on time. (I understand that it is not possible at times—but please do not make it a routine.)

Tobacco/Cell Phone/Beepers. Tobacco is not allowed in the classroom. Cell phones and beepers must be turned off for the entire duration of the class.

Classroom etiquette. Above all, always respect yourself and others; be patient; be willing to explore new ideas (perspectives), avoid reading newspapers/books and side conversations—they are distracting to fellow students and myself; and restrict questions and comments to the tabled topic.

Incomplete Grades:

PLEASE AVOID INCOMPLETE GRADES. ALL ASSIGNMENTS AND TESTS ARE DUE ON THE DATES OUTLINED IN THE SYLLABUS. It is the responsibility of students to notify me if they cannot make a test or will not be in class. Please call me at 830/758-5017 if you do not plan to attend a class session or feel you will be missing an exam. If I do not hear from you prior to class, I will not allow an excuse for the absence.

Class Responsibilities and Conduct:

You will be responsible for the films shown in class and for material presented by any guest speakers. You will be responsible for getting the notes for any classes you may have to miss. Any student who is intentionally disruptive will be asked to leave for the remainder of that class period. Any student who has been asked to leave twice will be reported to the Department Chair or Academic Dean. Disruptive behavior includes but is not limited to the following: cell phone disruptions, being repeatedly late; leaving early without prior permission; talking or otherwise disturbing class discussions; leaving the room during class, video presentation or guest speakers. You are expected to show respect to yourself, other students, and your Professor.

Academic Honesty (Reference Sul Ross State University—Rio Grande College Catalog):

Rio Grande College expects its students to maintain high standards of personal and academic conduct. Students who take part in academic dishonesty are subject to disciplinary action. Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to, cheating on an examination or other academic work, plagiarism, collusion, and the abuse of resource materials. The faculty member is responsible for initiating action for each case of academic dishonesty. Discover any academic dishonesty by a student, may be reported to the Department Chair or Academic Dean.

Disability Services:

Students who have special instructional needs because of a physical handicap or a learning disability should discuss their special needs with the office of Student Disabilities Services. You may also see the University/College Catalog for additional information. Please do so before the end of the first week of class.

Drop Policy:

If you discover that you need to drop this class, you must contact the Records Office and ask for the necessary paperwork. Professors cannot drop students; this is always the responsibility of the student. The record's office will give a deadline for which the paperwork and form, if required, must be returned, complete and signed. If you discover that you are still enrolled, FOLLOW-UP with the Records Office immediately. You are to attend class until the procedure is complete to avoid penalty for absence. Should you miss the deadline or fail to follow the procedure, you will receive an F in the course.

Library Services:

Library information and technology focus on research skills that prepare individuals to live and work in an information-centered society. Librarians will work with students in the development of critical reasoning, ethical use of information, and the appropriate use of secondary research techniques including: exploring information resources such as library collections and services, identify sources such as subject databases and scholarly journals, executing effective search strategies, retrieving, recording, and citing relevant results correctly, and interpreting search results and deciding whether to expand the search.

Again, I want this class to be useful to you in your future careers. And, if I can assist you in any way, please stop by and see me or call/e-mail me. If a problem is to arise during the semester, please contact me immediately so that we can work out a solution. Do not wait until it is too late to remedy the problem.

Tentative*
Schedule of Classes and Assignments

Week	Topic	Reading
Week 1	Focus: Detail class expectations; provide a foundation for the study of statutory, constitutional, and international rights; & provide an introduction & broad overview of the subject matter: constitutional rights of prisoners and detainees.

Week 16	Final Exam: TBA

*The syllabus is likely to be amended during the semester at the discretion of the Professor!

Note: Projects will be due at the beginning of the class, and no late assignments will be accepted.

Mini-Project Suggestions

1. With fellow students, family members, or friends, discuss the issue of whether undocumented people should be entitled to the same statutory and constitutional rights as their counterparts; that is, US citizens and legal residents. WHY? Or, WHY NOT?
2. With fellow students, family members, boy-friends, or girl-friends, discuss the issue of whether the US criminal justice system is honoring international treaties, like Article 36 of the Vienna Convention, regarding prisoners and detainees.
3. Visit different courtrooms in the area (local, state or federal) during the prosecution of criminal defendants. Compare what you see with the descriptions in this class. Keep a diary of your experience.
4. Find interesting stories in newspapers and magazines pertaining to the constitutional rights of prisoners and detainees, like the prosecution, detention, and incarceration of Puerto Rican Nationalists (you might want to read Urbina's article on Puerto Rican Nationalists), and report on them in class. Another topic could be the execution of foreign nationals, like Latinas and Latinos, in the US (you might want to read Urbina's publications on the execution of Latinos). Explain what you find interesting about the stories.
5. Watch a documentary, video, or movie on the September 11, 2001 attacks on the US and examine the influence of post 9/11 anti-terrorism legislation, like Patriot Act 1 & 2, on prisoners and detainees.
