Texts (required): David M. Kennedy, The American People in World War II

At the end of The Great War (later known as World War I), Americans were surprised when the war had ended suddenly. The United States was the only nation involved in the war to come out of the war in better shape than it had been when it entered the war. The war had not been fought on American territory and Americans had been involved in combat for about a year. American casualties in the war had been relatively light. The influenza epidemic killed more American soldiers than the war. They soon grew cynical about the war and embraced once more the traditional American position of isolationism regarding the Old World and especially Europe. As events in Europe and the Far East and most were optimistic about the future. Many felt that the nation which had won the war could do anything.

The graduating student with a MA in history will:

1. Demonstrate a mastery of the historiography of the secondary sources in the fields of study
2. Demonstrate the ability to critically evaluate the written expression of others.
3. Demonstrate specific knowledge of past societies.
4. Write effectively, logically and persuasively about topics in history using proper punctuation and grammar.

Course assessments for the PLOs include the following class assignments:

Class discussion on Turner and the New Western History and discussion and evaluation of the remaining books will provide assessments for PLOs 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Written video reviews and the written and oral critical book review provide assessments for PLOs 2 and 4.

GOALS OF THE COURSE:

Students who have successfully completed History 5310 The American People in World War II should have the following competencies:

1. Compare and contrast multiple points of view and recognize the concept of multi-causality in the history of the United States leading up to and during World War II.
2. Understand the emergence of the United Nations alliance (U.S., Britain, U.S.S.R., and China) and how it affected the progress and outcome of the war, including the progress of the war in many parts of the world..

3. Comprehend the changes in the political, social and economic aspects of life in the United States between 1939 and 1945 and analyze these changes.
4. Compare and contrast the emergence of rights' consciousness among various groups with little power during World War II and the attempts by those people who traditionally exercised power to prevent changes in the power structure.
5. Analyze videos on a variety of topics and place them in the context of the times being studied. Write coherent and thoughtful reviews of these videos.
6. Graduates. Be able to read a book and write a critical book review.
7. Graduates. Give an oral presentation of their book review to the class..

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

Class participation	150 points
Film Reviews	150 points
Attendance	100 points
Book Review	150 points
Oral Book Review	150 points
Final Examination	150 points

GRADES:

In order to receive an A for the course, you must have 90% of the possible points, a B, 80%, a C, 70%, a D 60% and below 60% an F.

ATTENDANCE: It is important that you attend class regularly and you will have 10 points deducted from your attendance grade for each class period missed. In case of an emergency or University sponsored trip, this may be adjusted at the discretion of the instructor.

CLASS PARTICIPATION. The course involves a good deal of class discussion and class participation, and it is EXTREMELY IMPORTANT that every member of the class do the reading and other assignments for the class in which they will be discussed. The better the quality of the discussions, the greater the success of the class. This class also requires some flexibility in timing; therefore, while the attached outline is detailed, it may be adjusted from time to time. Class participation counts for 150 points in determining your course grade.

BOOK REVIEW AND ORAL PRESENTATION:

Graduate students will each present an oral book review to the class of an additional book assigned to the student by the instructor. The student will also turn in a written book review of 7 to 12 pages on the book. Each of these will be worth 150 points.

CLASSROOM COURTESIES:

You are expected to observe the following classroom courtesies:

1. No hats or caps will be worn in the classroom.
2. No tobacco in any form will be used in the classroom.
3. You may bring soft drinks, water, or coffee into the classroom, but please be sure to remove empty containers.
4. No recorders may be used without prior consent of the instructor in cases of certified disability.
5. You are expected to give your attention to this class.
6. In discussions, be willing to listen to others' ideas and be polite in disagreements.
7. Turn off and put away all cell phones, laptops, MP3 players, tablets and other electronic devices.

About the Course. This course emphasizes reading. You will be given reading assignments in the text and in some other sources as well. Because of the nature of the course, it is extremely important that everyone in the class have the assigned material read and be ready to discuss it at the designated time. There will be several films and videos shown. You will complete a film/video review for each one. There will be approximately 12 video reviews at 15 points each for a total of 150 points – if you complete them all you will get up to 30 points of extra credit. The video reviews will be turned in on Safe Assign in Blackboard and each one will have a deadline by which it must be completed.

Blackboard. This course has a companion on-line component on Blackboard. You access it from any computer by going to the Sul Ross home page (www.sulross.edu) and finding Blackboard. Click on that and then log-in. Select History 5310 and it will take you to this course. On Blackboard the 4317 and the 5310 have been combined. Announcements, e-mails to the instructor, the grade book, the syllabus, and SafeAssign all will be found on this site.
