Program Learning Outcomes:

1. Demonstrate proficiency in the application of legal concepts, theoretical applications, scientific principles, and historical trends in the criminal justice arena.
2. Demonstrate competency in the application of basic research methods, to include: research design, statistical analysis, and uses of empirical findings and interpretations.
3. Demonstrate the application of organizational principles, cultural, social and behavioral knowledge, critical thinking skills and cognitive thought processes within the criminal justice arena.

Course Description and Objective: Multiculturalism in the Criminal Justice System will offer an historical, sociological, criminological, and philosophical analysis of the nature of crime, the dynamics of law and society as well as the significance, implications, and ramifications of social interactions, the socialization process, societal expectations, public opinion, and the media. Specifically, the intent of this course is to provide the student with a detailed understanding of seven main topics, which are best expressed in the following questions:

1. What is multiculturalism, in a general sense? What is multiculturalism in the criminal justice system?

2. What are the most influential theoretical and philosophical ideologies behind the modern multiculturalism movement, to include ideas and practice, in the criminal justice system and, more globally, the American society? How has the criminal justice system (to include law enforcement, the judicial system, and the penal system), in the context of multiculturalism, evolved in the US? What are the links between time and space?
3. Pragmatically, philosophically, politically, economically, culturally, and socially, what do we mean by Multiculturalism, in the criminal justice system and society in general?
4. What FORCES have driven and/or continue to drive essential elements and dynamics of multiculturalism as it pertains to the criminal justice system and the American society? For instance, what role do economics, politics, religion, sexuality, gender, age, race, ethnicity, culture, law, the media, symbolism, power, social norms, and society play in defining and re-defining multiculturalism? Likewise, what role have historical ruptures, discontinuities, and events played in shaping and re-shaping the fundamentals of multiculturalism?
5. WHO has played the most significant role in advocating the multiculturalism movement? As a secondary question: what do advocates and opponents of references as the benefits, or consequences of multiculturalism?
6. What are the implications and ramifications of “globalized legislation and sanctions,” and, more broadly, globalization, to include the globalization of knowledge? Given the significance of the globalization movement, we will spend some time exploring essentials of globalization, with a little help by Peter Berger and Thomas Luckmann in The social construction of reality: A treatise in the sociology of knowledge (1966), Thomas Kuhn The structure of scientific revolutions (1996), and Martin Guevara Urbina in “The Dynamics of Globalization: The Unspoken Realities.”
7. What is the future of multiculturalism in the American society, and, by extension, the criminal justice system?

The next set of questions is essentially definitional in nature. It is essential that we share the same definitions of an issue, event, situation, or problem if we are to come to a common understanding of both the problem and any possible solutions. Consequently, the class’s first segment deals with defining “Multiculturalism,” as it pertains to the criminal justice system and placing it in a global context.

The last set of questions is more analytical. A particular truism about jurisprudence, criminological, sociological, and theoretical aspects of the nature and dynamics of crime, society, and multiculturalism is as follows: There are many typologies of criminological, sociological, jurisprudence, and multiculturalism as there are authors writing textbooks about the subject. The five-fold approach we will take is an amalgam of several such typologies:

History—When deemed appropriate, we will make use of historical events, situations, and circumstances to better understand the subject matter by its totality. It is essential that we obtain an understanding and appreciation for historical ruptures and discontinuities as we try to bridge existing gaps. According to an African proverb, “Until lions have their own historians, histories of the hunt will glorify the hunter.”

Theory—Theoretically, we must investigate which theories provide the best guidance in our search for “truth and reality.”

Law and Society—In a society where most behavior is governed by some type of law, it is vital that we explore the relationships between law and society. To some scholars, laws are a measure of culture; crime, another element of all known cultures, is the violation of those laws. In essence, why do we have laws? Do we need laws? Does law makes a difference?

Philosophy—While sociological and criminological theories might serve as “road maps” to everyday life, philosophy gives “meaning” to human existence. It enables us to better appreciate what matters most at the END of the day, and, more so, as we face our morality.

Poetry—Even though poetry is one of the oldest forms of dialogue, it is seldom mentioned in academic discussions. Yet, poetry allows us to transcend the unknown ... it allows us to dream the impossible ... to dream the impossible dream. “Invent the age, invent the metaphor. Without a credible structure of law a society is inconceivable. Without a workable poetry no society can conceive a [person].” --Archibald MacLeish, Apologia, 1972.

The final question has policy overtones. First, we must briefly look at the nature, process, and socialization of human behavior, in the context of the criminal justice system and the American society in general to gain insight and, possibly, appreciation for multiculturalism. Next, we turn to the more difficult task of linking behavior and sociological and criminological theory to multiculturalism, research, and practice.

Overall, this course is designed to introduce you to the essentials and dynamics of Multiculturalism within the context of criminal justice and, by extension, society as a whole—ultimately, human behavior in the world. By introducing you to influential issues that provide the frameworks to studying a wide variety of phenomena, I intend this course to be a basis for further, more in-depth study in the areas that interest you.

Course Context: As an upper-level course, this class may include controversial, sensitive, and/or adult material. For instance, within diversity and multiculturalism, what is the influence of religion, or sexuality, concepts that tend to be tied to other issues, like race, ethnicity, and gender? Thus, students are expected to have the mentality and readiness for upper-level content and rigor.

Attendance/Class Participation:

Please complete the reading assignments before coming to class because there will be in-class group discussion on the assigned material. Each student will also be assigned readings and asked to discuss them in class. Note: The 100 participation points are NOT based solely on attendance. Along with "regular" attendance, I equate all aspects of diction to determine the participation grade. Overall, I consider whether the content of the participation is thoughtful, creative, original, and mature.

Weekly Assignments:

There will be ten (10) Weekly Assignments, each worth 20 points for a total of 100 points. The Weekly Assignments will be discussed further the first week of class.

Article/Book Reviews:

For your Article/Book Reviews you are asked to read and make critical judgment about three (3) books/articles (20 points each). In particular, select your readings (1 book and 2 articles OR 2 books and 1 article) from the followings lists (see above): “Optional Readings” and “Recommended Readings.” Note: Some exceptions will be noted in class!

As you will see, the books vary in length. Hence, be prudent about the size of the books vis-a-vis your class load. In the Article/Book Reviews for this course, keep in mind that you are limited to 3 typed pages. The logistics of the Article/Book Reviews will be discussed in class and handouts will be provided to assist you with the writing assignments.

Exams:

There will be two (2) essay exams (midterm and final), each worth 100 points. Please arrange for make-up examinations prior to the date of the exam. The examinations will cover lecture materials, films, and reading assignments. Exams will contain open-ended questions (and a series of secondary questions), so please bring a blue book and a pencil/pen to each exam.

Project:

The logistics of the project, which will be submitted as a formal paper, will be discussed in detailed in class. Illustration: many agencies allow citizens to go in and observe. Some law enforcement agencies, for instance, allow “ride alongs.” Hence, you could arrange to participate in a series of “field” activities. At the end of the shift, write down what you observed. Describe how it compares with what you have learned in class (e.g., law, crime, justice, multiculturalism, and policy implications). For instance, based on your observations, what are the links between law, crime, multiculturalism and practice?

Your project, which is required (100 points), will be presented at the end of the semester, if time allows. Papers (approximately 8 to 12 pages in length) must be typed. Late papers will not be accepted. Do not turn in your only copy of any paper in case assignments are lost or destroyed.

Mini-project:

This should be a fun exercise that allows you to explore (critically) some aspect of multiculturalism in greater depth with less evaluation anxiety than you would have in a full-length paper assignment. I would like you to try to and choose a project that you will enjoy, and that will stimulate your thinking about the concepts covered in this course.

Mini-projects are optional. You will receive “extra credit” points for completing mini-projects. If your mini-project is adequate, you will receive one point. This point(s) will be added on to your final grade at the end of the semester.

You may turn in your mini-projects any time during the semester. The projects will be of greater value if they are done thoughtfully. Thus, you may not submit more than three (3) mini-projects.

There is no minimum or maximum length requirement. Typically you will hand in a three to five page typed paper as the final product of each mini-project. Some projects, however, may require longer (or shorter) write-ups. Your analysis should illustrate or explore some phenomenon relevant to the course, while knowledgeably using concepts, principles, and language in the context of multiculturalism in the criminal justice system or the American society in general.

Attached to the end of the syllabus are descriptions of some mini-project options. Some of them will make more sense to you as we progress through the course. If you think of an alternative you would like to do as a mini-project, please feel free to ask me about it. Again, I am looking for you to implement class material—especially critical issues/perspectives—when describing the phenomena you choose to explore.

Grades: There are a total of 560 points available in this course. Grades will be based on the total points for the semester. Specifically, grades will be assigned by comparing your performance to the best possible score (560) as follows:

Exams:	200 points
Weekly Assignments:	100 points*
Book/Article Reviews:	60 points
Project:	100 points
Attendance/Participation:	100 points

Total.....	560 points

*Tentatively, weekly assignments will count for 100 points. However, it is possible that the total possible points (i.e., 100) will be increased, or reduced. If increased, the TOTAL POSSIBLE points discussed herein (i.e., 560) will add to more than 560 points. If reduced, the TOTAL POSSIBLE points discussed herein (i.e., 560) will add to less than 560 points.

Similarly, if the 100 participation points are either increased or reduced, only the total possible points for participation that are utilized will be equated in the final grade distribution. In such case, the TOTAL POSSIBLE points discussed herein (i.e., 560) will add to less (or more) than 560 points.

Grade Distribution:

90-100%	= A (Excellent)
80-89%	= B (Better than Average)
70-79%	= C (Average)
Below 60%	= Failing

Attendance Policy:

This course is designed to be both lecture and discussion. Thus, it is to your advantage to attend class regularly. For instance, if you do not attend class, you cannot learn the discussed material. Additionally, you will not be able to discuss the assigned readings. Much of the learning in class is through interaction, especially in small group discussions. In the process, you will be given the opportunity to express your views and ask questions that might enhance our understanding of multiculturalism. Also, do not hesitate to share experiences that may help to enhance our understanding of the dynamics and essentials of multiculturalism. (Please reference Sul Ross State University—Rio Grande College Catalog for additional information.)

Punctuality is also of extreme importance. “Tardiness” is extremely disruptive to students and myself. Thus, try to be on time. I understand that it is not possible at times, but please do not make it a routine.

Tobacco/Cell Phone/Beepers: Tobacco is not allowed in the classroom. Cell phones and beepers must be turned off for the entire duration of the class.

Classroom etiquette: Above all, always respect yourself and others; be patient; be willing to explore new ideas (perspectives), avoid reading newspapers/books and side conversations—they are distracting to fellow students and myself; and restrict questions and comments to the tabled topic.

Incomplete Grades:

PLEASE AVOID INCOMPLETE GRADES. ALL ASSIGNMENTS AND TESTS ARE DUE ON THE DATES OUTLINED IN THE SYLLABUS. It is the responsibility of students to notify me if they cannot make a test or will not be in class. Please call me at 830/758-5017 if you do not plan to attend a class session or feel you will be missing an exam. If I do not hear from you prior to class, I will not allow an excuse for the absence.

Class Responsibilities and Conduct:

You will be responsible for the films shown in class and for material presented by any guest speakers. You will be responsible for getting the notes for any classes you may have to miss. Any student who is intentionally disruptive will be asked to leave for the remainder of that class period. Any student who has been asked to leave twice will be reported to the Department Chair or Academic Dean. Disruptive behavior includes but is not limited to the following: cell phone disruptions, being repeatedly late; leaving early without prior permission; talking or otherwise disturbing class discussions; leaving the room during class, video presentation or guest speakers. You are expected to show respect to yourself, other students, and your Professor.

Academic Honesty (Reference Sul Ross State University—Rio Grande College Catalog): Rio Grande College expects its students to maintain high standards of personal and academic conduct. Students who take part in academic dishonesty are subject to disciplinary action. Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to, cheating on an examination or other academic work, plagiarism, collusion, and the abuse of resource materials. The faculty member is responsible for initiating action for each case of academic dishonesty. Discover any academic dishonesty by a student, may be reported to the Department Chair or Academic Dean.

Disability Services:

Students who have special instructional needs because of a physical handicap or learning disability should discuss their needs with the office of Student Disabilities Services. You may also see the University Catalog for additional information. Please do so before the end of the first week of class.

Drop Policy:

If you discover that you need to drop this class, you must contact the Records Office and ask for the necessary paperwork. Professors cannot drop students; this is always the responsibility of the student. The Record's Office will give a deadline for which the paperwork and form, if required, must be returned, complete and signed. If you discover that you are still enrolled, FOLLOW-UP with the Records Office immediately. You are to attend class until the procedure is complete to avoid penalty for absence. Should you miss the deadline or fail to follow the procedure, you will receive an F in the course.

Library Services:

Library information and technology focus on research skills that prepare individuals to live and work in an information-centered society. Librarians will work with students in the development of critical reasoning, ethical use of information, and the appropriate use of secondary research techniques including: exploring information resources such as library collections and services, identify sources such as subject databases and scholarly journals, executing effective search strategies, retrieving, recording, and citing relevant results correctly, and interpreting search results and deciding whether to expand the search.

The Rio Grande College Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP):

Sul Ross State University Rio Grande College is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS). As part of the reaffirmation process, SACS requires every institution to develop a Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP) that enhances student learning. Rio Grande College has developed a QEP called Putting Your Words to Work that requires students to write different kinds of papers and deliver oral presentations for courses in all departments. Rio Grande College is committed to enhancing students' written and oral communication skills which means that students should be writing and speaking significantly more in courses across all departments.

To prepare for the increased number of written assignments, students should make every effort to enroll in English 3312 in their first semester at RGC. Students should expect to write and speak professionally in all courses, not just English classes. In this course, Multiculturalism, students will write various papers and present student work to other students and the Professor, as discussed herein. If you have questions about the QEP, please contact Dr. Sarah Moreman, QEP Coordinator, at smoreman@sulross.edu.

Again, I want this class to be useful to you in your future careers. And, if I can assist you in any way, please stop by and see me or call/e-mail me. If a problem is to arise during the semester, please contact me immediately so that we can work out a solution. Do not wait until it is too late to remedy the problem.

*The syllabus is likely to be amended during the semester at the discretion of the Professor!

Note: Projects will be due at the beginning of the class, and no late assignments will be accepted.

Mini-Project Suggestions

1. Find interesting stories in newspapers, magazines, or other published materials that discuss multiculturalism, and report on them in class. Explain what you find interesting about the stories.
2. With fellow students, family members, boy-friends, or girl-friends, discuss the dynamics of multiculturalism and see how verse they are on the realities of multiculturalism.
3. Watch a documentary, video, or movie that explores multiculturalism in the criminal justice system or the American society in general. What do YOU find interesting vis-à-vis what you learned in class?
4. Make observations (look and listen) of HOW people describe the multiculturalism in the US, history in the making, and see if you notice variation with noted material in class. Keep a diary of your experience.
5. Make observations of HOW people interact with people of a different race, ethnicity, culture, religion, or class, and see if you notice variation. Compare what you see with the descriptions in this class. Keep a diary of your experience.
