Course Grading

There will be five exams in this course. Each exam will be worth 100 points. At the end of this course, I will add up your four highest grades and drop the lowest test grade. Therefore, your exams will count for a possible 400 points.

Classroom Courtesy and Civility

- Regular Attendance and punctuality is expected.
- A tardy will be given to any student who is more than 5 minutes late and it is the student's responsibility to inform the instructor that they were tardy.

- 3 tardies will constitute 1 absence. A total of 9 absences will result in an instructor's drop from the class with an F.
- Cell phone use will not be tolerated. It is a distraction to you personally and those around you. All phones are to be turned off or placed on airplane mode. Any student caught using their phones will be dismissed from class with an absence for the day. Persistent cell phone usage will result in the student being dropped from the class.

Course Objectives

At the end of the course the student should be able to identify major historical currents and forces that have shaped the history of the 1st half of the United States. This includes:

1. The geographical features of the North American continent and how these features shaped the historical experience of the nation.
2. The economic, political, demographic, technological, religious, and cultural forces that encouraged European expansion in the 15th and 16 centuries and the major political figures and events of the Age of Exploration.
3. The growth of colonial societies and cultures and the interactions of European, Native American, and African cultures in the formation of colonial history.
4. The economic, ideological, and political origins of colonial grievances against the British Empire and how these grievances convinced the colonists of the necessity of seeking Independence from England.
5. The military origins of the Republic.
6. The political and regional problems facing the New Republic and how the founding fathers of the United States forged a new Republic and Constitution.
7. The ideas underlying the Republic.
8. The technological and economic transformation that reshaped the American Republic in the age of the manufacturing and marketing revolutions, 1790-1850.
9. The transformations that reshaped the American political landscape during the Jacksonian era, 1828-1848.
10. The demographic, military, and ideological forces that pushed westward expansion in the age of Manifest Destiny, the American confrontation with Mexico over the secession of Texas, and the annexation of the American Southwest.
11. The growing sectional differences between the Antebellum South and the manufacturing North and how these growing differences laid the basis for the causes of the American Civil War.
12. Why did the North win the Civil War and why did the South Lose?
13. The political and social history during the Reconstruction Era, 1865-1877.

Primary Learning Outcomes

The graduating student in history will be able to:

1. The student will be able to develop an informed, critical, and articulate approach to the study of history.
2. The student will be able to demonstrate knowledge of historical events, movements, major turning points and personalities of the past.
3. The student will be able to demonstrate an ability to identify and relate the role that historical interpretation plays in assessments of the past.
4. The student will be able to write effectively, logically, and persuasively about topics in history.

The Primary Learning Objectives (PLO) shall be measured by the administration of five exams and one term paper. Each exam will consist of 25 multiple choice questions which shall measure objectives one and two of the PLO. Each exam will also consist of two essays which shall measure objectives three and four. The term paper over a U.S. President will also measure objectives three and four.
