

Course Syllabus: History 5312: 001 Readings and Research in Nuclear History

Course Objectives: This course is designed as independent readings and research for the advanced upper division graduate student. The student will read three books on a predetermined topic and write a twenty-page research paper on a topic pertaining to American Nuclear history. Weekly Meetings between the student and the instructor will take place in the instructor's office