Poetry of Phoebe Cary, Emily Dickinson, Helen Hunt Jackson and Walt Whitman available through the Poetry Foundation website: https://www.poetryfoundation.org/

Course Description
In 1941 the scholar F.O. Mathiessen coined the term “the American Renaissance” to describe a brief period from 1850-55, which forged a national literary identity and was remarkable for the production of masterpieces, like Moby Dick, Leaves of Grass, and Walden. More recent scholarship has expanded the era to include earlier authors, like Washington Irving, and minorities authors, like the Cherokee author of the borderlands John Rollin Ridge, women poets like Dickinson and Phoebe Cary, and the African-American writer and orator Frederick Douglas. Their philosophy drew on transcendentalism, utopian reform, and abolitionism. Their style could involve sentimentalism, romantic irony, realism, the Arabesque and the Gothic. These authors continue to resonate through the works of contemporary authors: nature writers emulate Thoreau; novelists follow Melville; feminists connect with fuller; and poets try to capture the voice of Whitman.

Objectives for 5307
Students will be able to

1. Develop an awareness of the literary tradition of American Transcendentalism.
2. Apply the philosophical lenses of Transcendentalism and the aesthetics of American Romanticism to understand problems related to education, race, class, sexism, and the environment.
3. Use literature as a means of critically understanding our society.
4. Acquire a knowledge of the critical tradition and apply techniques of literary research and criticism to write about writing.

Graduate Program in English Learning Outcomes
ENGLISH (GRADUATE)
Graduate students will be able to

1. Demonstrate an understanding of the significance of major authors, literary works in different genres, and definitive literary movements in British and American literature
2. Explicate literary works representative of two periods or genres in British literature and two periods or genres in American literature
3. Employ methodology and terminology used in creative writing or linguistics
4. Conduct substantial research to support original interpretations of literary works, provide original applications of literary or linguistic theories, or present literature reviews of authors or genres that have inspired creative writing projects

DISTANCE EDUCATION STATEMENT
Students enrolled in distance education courses have equal access to the university’s academic support services, library resources, and instructional technology support. For more information about accessing these resources, visit the SRSU website. Students should submit online assignments through Blackboard or SRSU email, which require secure login information to verify students’ identities and to protect students’ information. The procedures for filing a student complaint are included in the student handbook. Students enrolled in distance education courses at Sul Ross are expected to adhere to all policies pertaining to academic honesty and appropriate student conduct, as described in the student handbook. Students in web-based courses must maintain appropriate equipment and software, according to the needs and requirements of the course, as outlined on the SRSU website.

Projects

I. Response Papers (500 points)

I will expect a total of 10 response papers, which will be posted to the course’s Blackboard Discussion Board. The length of each post should be from 300-500 words, which could be two to four paragraphs. Although summarizing is one step in analysis, focus on raising questions, interpreting, and responding critically. To develop your ideas, use quotes. Another good strategy is referring to other literature you know: inter-textual reading—intertextual reading. Response papers are less formal, but they still require some care and art. A response paper is an essay in the original sense—a try. Please also give some feedback to other students’ posts. Ideas are really build through dialog. Response papers will mainly be critical interpretations of an aspect of our readings. In the latter half of the class, they can also reflect on your research and writing process for the term paper.

II. Term Paper (500 points)

The term paper can focus on one aspect of one work of literature or compare two works of literature. Share your statement of class for a Discussion Board post and send it to me by email so that I can respond quickly to it. We will share ideas for papers and help each other through the research process.

The Learning Center (TLC)
The Learning Center is located in the first floor of the library. Tutors are available to help you with any problems you may have with an assignment. Take advantage of this service any time you need help.

Plagiarism and Academic Integrity
Dishonest acts, such as plagiarism (using words or a specific author’s ideas from another source without acknowledging the source) or collusion (having other people write parts of your paper for you), may result in an “F” on the assignment and may lead to a disciplinary hearing conducted through the office of the Dean of Students, which could result in suspension or expulsion from SRSU. If you have questions about whether your use of other sources (such as books, websites, friends, or Writing Center tutors) is fair or not, please ask before turning in the work that you have a question about.
