Course Overview:

This course is an introduction to black and white film photography and darkroom printing, designed to make students comfortable with the basics of photography and using film cameras and the darkroom. We will cover the basics of shooting with a film camera, processing film, and printing in the darkroom. We will examine the work of historical and contemporary photographers engaged in analog photography processes and explore the relevance of analog photography in the digital age. There will be an emphasis on final print quality, creativity, and the ability to think and speak critically about your work and the work of others.

Blackboard will be used weekly for the distribution of readings, videos, PowerPoint lectures, and assignments. If you do not have reliable internet access, please talk to the instructor.

This class is not difficult but the time commitment and expense for the class is considerable. Please talk to the instructor if you have concerns.

Sourcing Film and Paper

For this class, I recommend purchasing Kodak Tri-X 400 Black & White 35mm Film and Ilford Multigrade RC Deluxe Pearl 8x10 paper. These are great for beginners – easy to use and good quality. Buy in bulk! You will need at least 6 rolls of film for this class. You can start by buying a box of 25 sheets of paper, but know that you will almost absolutely need 25 more before the semester is over.

Lab Fees

There is a $25.00 lab fee for Photography. This fee will cover materials and chemicals used for projects done for class only. All lab fees must be paid into the Art Stores Account at the Cashier's office in Briscoe Administration Building (BAB) and a receipt provided to the instructor no later than Friday, January 28th, 2022.

Assessment & Grading Criteria

You will be assessed in each class on your progress and participation in lectures, discussions, assignments, and critiques. Your grade will be based on class participation and the quality of the effort you put into completing all assignments. Being in class is very important. Much of the work for this course cannot be done outside lab. The knowledge needed to complete assignments will be gained through in-person lectures and demonstrations that will be difficult to repeat or for you to make up. If you miss class, catching up is your responsibility.

How you're graded: Photo assignments - 40%. Class participation in critiques, presentations, and discussions - 20%. Artist Journals - 20%. Final Project - 20%.

Homework Policy

It is important to stay on track because we will cover material in class each week that builds on the previous weeks. Keep a steady workflow and don't get behind. If you miss a class, refer to that week's assignment on Blackboard, talk to classmates to get class notes and schedule a time to meet with the instructor.

Weekly Responsibilities

- Readings and Films

Each week you will be assigned short readings and/or relevant films on photographic concepts, techniques, or history. These will be posted on Blackboard. Write a short response to the assigned material in your Artist Journal. I will provide prompts on Blackboard to serve as guide for your reflections. Be prepared to discuss your reflections in class.

- Artist Journals

Throughout the semester, you will keep a notebook dedicated to photographs and photographers that interest you, responses to readings/film assignments, and reflections on your progress throughout the course. 1-2 new entries should be added every week. Creativity is encouraged – feel free to include drawings, poems, maps, tokens of inspiration, etc – it's YOUR artist journal!

We will occasionally take class time for you to share one image or photographer with the class. This is meant to help you build a working knowledge of photo-history and current photography and to apply this knowledge in critiques and when you shoot your own photos. Your journals will be evaluated at mid-term for a grade. At the end of the semester, your journal should include responses to photographs by at least 12 different photographers, responses to each of the readings/films assigned throughout the semester, and reflections on your experiences in the course and your own photographic practice.

- Photo Assignments

Seven photo assignments (including a final project) will be assigned throughout the semester. Each week, you will take photographs with your film camera, develop film, and/or print photographs in the darkroom. We have a lot of new ground to cover in just 16 weeks. Don't get behind!
