“We are born into a family, we are socialized and acculturated within a family, we mature from a family using information and behaviors learned from a family, and, when we die, we diminish a family. Families surround us, shape us, and contribute to our destiny.” (Judy Goldberg, Family Therapist)

My name is Dr. Joseph Velasco (most students call me Dr. V), and I am happy to be on this academic journey with you.

Communication is learned and much of what we learn is learned within family contexts. We communicate to meet and interact with other people and to improve all types of relationships. Across the varying dynamics of family, friends, romances, lifestyles, cultures, and interpersonal relationships, communication defines and shapes the interaction as we seek to strengthen bonds. This course is grounded in communication research centered on family interaction and multiple communicative/relational issues implicating family as the core communicative context.

This course is designed as an introduction to communication phenomena in the setting of the family. The overall goal is to help you understand how we develop, maintain, enhance, or disturb family relationships through communication. You will learn verbal and nonverbal skills which can help promote healthy family communication.

Finally, this course also provides an option for service-learning, which is a teaching and learning strategy that integrates meaningful community service with instruction and reflection to enrich the learning experience, teach civic responsibility, and strengthen communities.

Section I. Course Objectives

The general objectives for this course are to further enhance your competence and knowledge of human communication within family contexts. As a student, your learning objectives are to:

1. Develop a communication perspective on the family.
2. Identify and explain various theories in family communication.
3. Comprehend various concepts and discuss them in an intellectual manner.
4. Analyze your communication and the communication of others.
5. Demonstrate proficiency with synthesizing concepts from multiple readings in conversation with other students.
6. Develop proficiency with academic writing.
7. Contribute to a collection of academic journal article reviews, thereby constructing a community of scholars amongst your course colleagues.

Section II. Student Learning Outcomes

This course is designed to meet one or more of the student learning outcomes applied to all Communication majors:

SLO 1: Students will be able to analyze communication content for argument, including identification of major elements, such as claim, warrants, and data.

SLO 2: Students will be able to effectively construct messages appropriate to audience, purpose, and context; including electronic media technologies.

SLO 3: Students will be able to apply Communication theories, perspectives, principles, and concepts to the analysis of communication situations.

Section III. Marketable Skills

This course offers you the opportunity to develop the following skills:

- Informative and Persuasive Speaking
- Audience-centered Writing
- Critical Analysis
- Research
- Effective Message Construction Using Technology

Section IV. Course Requirements, Assignments, and Grading

Assignment	Points Possible
Attendance & Participation	200
Article Summaries (4)	400
Literature Review Draft	100
Final - Literature Review	300
Total	1000

Grade Description (Points)

A = 900-1000
B = 800-899
C = 700-799
D = 600-699
F = < 600

Discussion Board. Thirty percent of your grade is dependent upon your contribution to our Blackboard discussion board. For each discussion question that I post, you are asked to contribute one response (25 points) and a reply (25 points) to one of your peers.

Article Summaries. Throughout the course, you are required to search the online database (provided by the library) and find four scholarly journal articles that both interest you AND relate to the field of family communication and come from a peer-reviewed Communication journal. For each journal article, you will write a one-page summary which adheres to a format which is posted on Blackboard. You will submit a Word document through our Bb Assignments link, and you will also post a copy in the designated discussion board so that your peers can view your work and respond to it. Basically, your summary will to teach the class about the content of the article, informing us of any key concepts, the methods employed, the findings, and discuss the implications of the study. In addition, you will need to prepare two discussion questions to pose to the class concerning your topic. All of this should be included in your handout.

Literature Review (and draft). You will choose a topic that interests you and can be understood from a family communication perspective. You will then survey the relevant literature written about your topic (primarily in the academic discipline of Communication Studies and its journals) and then organize it thematically. As you review your literature and themes emerge, you should be thinking about what gaps exist and where you might go in your research. On Tuesday, November 1st, you will submit a draft on Blackboard (saved as a Word document) of your literature review so that I can give you feedback a month in advance of the due date. The draft is worth 100 points. Your literature review is due on Friday, December 2nd by 5pm. Additional guidelines will be provided in class.

Section V. Course Policies

Basic Class Expectations: It is expected that you spend at least a few hours each week to complete the course readings and assignments. Since this class has online resources, I expect that you have reliable internet service and that you check your university email at least once a day. It is also recommended that you set up course notifications in Blackboard to receive alerts (e.g., email, text, etc.) when I post announcements, grades, or other course-related items. See instructions in Blackboard.

(Online) Classroom Demeanor: Communication issues tend to be emotionally charged. It is highly unlikely in a class this size that everyone will share your personal values, beliefs, and opinions. Believe it or not, this is a good thing! The presentation of varying perspectives will help all of us to learn. This can be accomplished if ideas, beliefs, and opinions are presented in a respectful way. I will be expecting all students to follow basic ground rules for our interactions whether they are face-to-face or virtual. We will discuss and establish these ground rules in class.

Academic Integrity. Intellectual development requires hard work. Academic dishonesty severely interferes with this development and reduces the value of college degrees. Presenting the ideas or work of others as your own, submitting the same paper for multiple classes, doing someone else's work, and/or failing to cite your sources when you utilize the ideas of others, are all examples of dishonest academic conduct. As an SRSU student, it is your responsibility to read and understand the university's expectations about academic integrity. All violations will be taken seriously and handled through the appropriate university process. The policy can be found at: <https://www.sulross.edu/about/administration/university-policies/>

Late Work: All of the assignments for the entire course will be posted and available as soon as the course is open. It is expected that all assignments are completed by the stated deadlines. Please plan your time carefully. If something does come up, prompt and clear communication will facilitate an accommodating response.
