Course Description

This course aims to give an overview of the major literary trends in Spanish America from 1839 to present. It will introduce students to the diverse literary forms of those tradition. Through a close reading of selected texts and films, we will focus on problems of literary analysis as well as on the development of Spanish American writing within its historical context.

Instructional Materials

All materials in this course will be provided by the professor or accessible via the internet.

Student Objectives/Competencies

Students who complete this course will be able to do the following:

- To understand the evolution of Spanish American literature from 1830 to XXI century.
- To study the relation between the literary genres and the rise of criticism
- To envision Latin American literature within the political contexts in which it grows (The independence movements and cultural emancipation/ the Modernism movement / the magical realism and Literature of the BOOM, etc.)
- To write an analytical essay, formulating and expressing a hypothesis about the meaning of a text, assembling textual evidence, citing according to MLA style, and drawing convincing conclusions
- To build Spanish vocabulary, especially that used in literary criticism, and learn a wide range of literary terms in Spanish
- To introduce the students into the main techniques and concepts of philological analysis of present texts.
- To achieve the active participation of students and their progressive self-learning.
- To acquaint with the organization of reference sources about the subject.

Course learning Activities

1. Attendance: Attendance is required and is included in the final grade. Three (3) or more unexcused attendance will result in a 0 in the attendance grade.
2. Participation: Active student participation in Spanish is an essential element of the course. Students should come to class prepared to use Spanish to the fullest extent possible. Students will be expected to ask and answer questions in Spanish; to work in pairs in Spanish; and to listen carefully to other student responses and/or presentations. A student's failure to cooperate with the instructor or with other students will be reflected in his/her class participation grade. Moreover, a student who repeatedly displays inadequate preparation for the class, who does not pay attention in class and/or refuses to participate may lose the opportunity to earn class participation points. Each student's class participation will be evaluated on a 0-10-point scale. A student who is absent, will receive a 0. To make up for the absence, the students must talk to the professor.
3. Oral Presentation: Students will give an oral report (about 10-15 minutes) to the class. The topics will be assigned by the professor based on the biography of one of the writers studied in class and his/her historical period. (The presentations should have a biography of the author, major literary works, reference to the literary movement. It is encouraged to use the internet to access to videos, or any information on the author and his/her work). At the end of the presentation, the student will propose questions to the class for further class discussions.
4. Reading quizzes: At the beginning of each class there will be a quiz about the reading assigned for the class period.
5. Blog: to assess the learning material of the course, each student will create a blog (using Google blogger <https://www.blogger.com/about/?bpli=1>) with information about very author we study in class. It is encouraged to use videos, photographs, media information, etc. about the authors. Every entry MUST have: a brief biography of the author, the literary movement pertaining his/her work, historical and political connection of his/her work, and a personal evaluation of the author. The blog is the assessment part of the course (exam). The professor will evaluate the blog twice at semester: as a midterm and for the final.

6. Final Paper: Topics to be either chosen by the student or assigned by the professor. Final paper due THE LAST WEEK OF CLASS. However, papers turned in during the grace period will be subject to an automatic one-step reduction of grade (e.g., a grade of A will become an A-). No papers will be accepted after THE LAST MONDAY OF CLASS. All written work should be typed, double-spaced, in Times New Roman, 12pt. font, and grammatically accurate (including spelling and diacritical marks). No papers are accepted in handwritten form. For the paper, student will use MLA guidelines:
