Instrument Critique Paper

DUE SUNDAY, October 4th at 11:59pm

Locating an appropriate instrument is an important part of the assessment process (see Chapter 5). Submit a thorough review of one test designed to measure a construct, such as personality, academic development, intelligence, social development, types of psychological diagnoses, career discernment, substance use disorder screening, process addiction screening, values inventory, skills inventory, interest inventory, or career readiness. The instrument you choose must be approved by me.

The instrument reviewed should pertain to your specific training emphasis in clinical mental health counseling and an area of study of greater interest to you because you will most likely utilize this instrument with future clients. Sources for information should include the Mental Measurement Yearbook, Tests in Print, or the official test manual from the assessment’s publisher. Do NOT select an assessment instrument that is no longer in print/no longer being published because you will fail the assignment (see pp. 109-112). Be sure to appropriately cite sources and to include quotation marks for direct quotes.

Helpful Hints: Direct quotes should only be utilized when you cannot say it any better. One of the most helpful ways to reduce similarity percentages noted by tools such as Turnitin or SafeAssign is to avoid direct quotes.

The instrument critique should be reported in the following outline form:

 - b. Version changes (if applicable) and rationale
6. Test use
 - a. Purpose
 - b. Target population as well as any groups for which the test is not applicable
7. Administration details (see pp. 114-119)
 - a. Time required
 - b. Training required
 - c. Standardization procedure and administration format (e.g., large group, small group, individual, paper vs. electronic, quiet environment, lighting, spacing, etc.)
 - d. Any special materials needed
 - e. Other administrative details
8. Scoring procedures
9. Normative data

Case Conceptualization and Treatment Plan Paper

DUE SUNDAY, December 6th, at 11:59pm

Choose one of the following case studies, and write a case conceptualization and treatment plan for the client. In this paper, you will use appropriate scholarly materials (i.e., professional, peer-reviewed journal articles, books, or textbooks, etc.) to support your treatment choices. Please include the following sections in your paper.

Introduction

- Client Demographic Information
 - This section includes name (formal and preferred), cultural background (race, ethnicity, age, gender, religious or spiritual affiliation, sexual orientation, gender identity, socioeconomic status, etc.), occupation, relationship status, current living situation, family history of mental health difficulties, religious or spiritual beliefs (if any), and any other pertinent demographic information.
- History of Treatment
 - This will include any past clinical counseling, substance abuse counseling, mental health facility or program admission (e.g., inpatient level of care [IP], residential [RES], partial hospitalization [PHP] or intensive outpatient [IOP]) or any other areas of treatment)
- Assessment
 - Using your textbook and other professional resources (Sul Ross Library), you will identify 2-3 assessments you recommend the client take for evaluation. These can include any number of assessments we have discussed throughout the course.
- Diagnosis
 - Using the DSM-5-TR, identify the client's diagnostic symptomatology including severity, duration, and frequency. Identify a preliminary diagnosis for the client.

- Conceptualization
 - Using your developing clinical judgement, conceptualize the client. Identify what you believe to be causing the client clinical distress including your discussion of both internal and external factors.
- Treatment Plan
 - Identify three clinical goals for your client. Using evidence-based treatment interventions (this is where your theory becomes relevant), identify how you will help the client achieve his/her goals and address his/her current symptoms.
- References
 - Identify any references you use. Only academic resources will be allowed (i.e., no popular sources like Wikipedia, Psychology Today, etc.).

Choose one of the following case studies. All case studies are fictitious and have been retrieved from:

Division 12 of the American Psychological Association. (n.d.). <https://div12.org/case-studies/>

Client #1

Chris is a 20-year-old Caucasian male who is in his second year of college. He is seeking treatment due to persistent fears that campus security and the local police are tracking and surveilling him. He cites occasional lags in his internet speed as evidence that surveillance devices are interfering with his electronics. His intense anxiety about this has begun getting in the way of his ability to complete schoolwork, and his friends are concerned. He says they have told him, "You're not making sense." Chris occasionally laughs abruptly and inappropriately and sometimes stops speaking mid-sentence, looking off in the distance as though he sees or hears something. He expresses concern about electronics in the counseling room (phone, computer) potentially being monitored and asks repeatedly about patient confidentiality, stating that he wants to be sure the police won't be informed about his treatment. His beliefs are fixed, and if they are challenged, his tone becomes hostile.

Client #2

Victor is a 27-year-old man who comes to you for help at the urging of his fiancé. He was an infantryman with a local Marine Reserve unit who was honorably discharged in 2014 after serving two tours of duty in Iraq. His fiancé has told him he has "not been the same" since his second tour of duty, and it is impacting their relationship. Although he offers few details, upon questioning, he reports that he has significant difficulty sleeping, that he "sleeps with one eye open" and, on the occasions when he falls into a deeper sleep, he has nightmares. He endorses experiencing several traumatic events during his second tour but is unwilling to provide specific details. He tells you he has never spoken with anyone about them, and he is not sure he ever will. He spends much of his time alone because he feels irritable and doesn't want to snap at people. He reports to you that he finds it difficult to perform his duties as a security guard because it is boring and gives him too much time to think. At the same time, he is easily startled by noise and motion and spends excessive time searching for threats that are never confirmed both when on duty and at home. He describes having intrusive memories about his traumatic experiences on a daily basis, but he declines to share any details. He also avoids seeing friends from his Reserve unit because seeing them reminds him of experiences that he does not want to remember.

Client #3

Tina is a 17-year-old high school junior who resides with her parents and 14-year-old brother. Tina's mother is concerned about her daughter's recent 22-pound weight loss. Tina counts calories and exercises each morning and evening. Despite her weight loss and low-average Body Mass Index (BMI), Tina says that she is "fat," and she weighs herself several times a day. Tina has always felt close to her family, especially to her mother. She is an excellent student, active in cheerleading and works a part-time job. Tina's mom tells her that she looks too thin, but Tina still believes she needs to lose more weight. Tina quickly is offended and reacts defensively. When Tina's father encourages her to eat more, she argues with him during dinner. Tina's brother teams up with Dad, sometimes calling Tina names. On several occasions, Tina has left the table and locked herself in her bedroom. Tina's parents are unsure if she is showing some ordinary teenage rebellion or if she is developing an eating disorder. Until now, Tina has never given them any problems.
